Pollinator Webinar Series:

The USFWS – U.S. Air Force Pollinator Conservation Project: Soaring with the Air Force

Description:

The goal of this webinar series is for participants to learn about various pollinator resources and to choose one that applies to their site and/or meets their audience (s) needs and implement it.

Dr. Dolores Savignano, Chair of the USFWS Pollinator Work Group and Headquarters Office biologist, will share information on a recent pollinator conservation project with the U.S. Air Force, and the new resources available as a result of the project. The project included development of a strategy, technical handbook, training, and pilot projects. The technical handbook, U.S. Air Force Pollinator Conservation Reference Guide, is available at:

https://www.fws.gov/pollinators/PollinatorPages/USAF_Ref_Guide.html

Dolores will discuss the information in the Reference Guide of interest to the military, other land managers, restoration biologists seeking to conserve pollinators, home gardeners, and students and educators interested in pollinators. Learn how the web links throughout the document will bring you to additional information on topics of interest.
